

TRAID TALKS

Who is Educating the Educators?

Speaker David Key

David is a teacher of Ecopsychology, Honorary Research Fellow at the University of Exeter and a Director of the social enterprise Natural Change.

Thursday 5th June 6:30pm - 8pm

The Hub, 4th Floor, 5 Torrens Street, London, EC1V 1NQ

'Are mainstream approaches to sustainable education enough to change the way we live?'

Resource scarcity, climate change and unsustainable models of progress has seen sustainable education initiatives proliferate globally. While there is a lot to celebrate, there is little qualitative change in terms of improving the state of the planet. Is sustainable education too simplistic? Does it fail to challenge systemic economic, environmental and social problems? If you are working in sustainable education, run campaigns or want to encourage change, please join us at the second #traidtalks to debate, listen and share.

Attendance is free with a suggested donation of £5.

Book your place by contacting Andrea Speranza at andrea@traid.org.uk / 020 8733 2591

TRAID is a charity (reg no 297489) working to tackle the problems caused by the production, consumption and disposal of clothes.

www.traid.org.uk / Tweet @TRAID / #traidtalks / Facebook TRAIIDcharity